Welcome to the Presidio of San Francisco

PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO A National Treasure, A Local Jewel

The Presidio is a place where American stories are told and new history is created. Guarding the Golden Gate since the nation's birth, the Presidio was in constant use as a military post for more than two hundred years. It was founded by Spain in 1776, and came under the control of the U.S. Army in 1846. The first "around the world" flights touched down in the Presidio; the first women to enter the Army trained as nurses at Letterman Hospital; and the Army commanded its Pacific Troops during World War II from the Main Post. The Presidio remained the seat of military power for the western states until 1994 when the Presidio became a national park.

One of the most important places in the west, the Presidio became a National Historic Landmark in 1962. It holds the story of our nation as the military pushed the country's frontier across the continent. Through a century of national expansion and growing power, the role of the military is articulated in the Presidio's buildings and landscapes, its fortifications and memorials. Generations of young Americans passed through its gates, committing their lives to an ideal, protecting the nation. The Presidio has enduring value for the American people.

Today, a community is growing in the Presidio, making it a unique national park. Nearly 3,000 people live in the homes that the Army built from the Civil War through the Cold War. More than 200 organizations and businesses operate from buildings that the Army vacated little more than a decade ago. The everyday activity of people reminds us that the Presidio, unlike the wilderness parks, was shaped by people.
